Customer satisfaction. The most common cause of customer dissatisfaction will be the length of time your employees remain in the Dark Ages. Every employee should be made aware of the importance of fixing the customer's problem. If you've been in business for a while, you've already seen your share of cases where the customer's problem was resolved, but the customer was still unhappy. The most common cause of this potentially fatal mistake is employees (or owners) who have allowed themselves to become isolated from the customer's concerns. It's up to you to make certain that all of your employees understand that the ultimate goal of your combined efforts is a satisfied customer, not just a sale.

8 Don't overlook your employees as a source of ideas to improve your operation.

No one is closer to your customers and their opinions than your own employees. Acknowledgment and respect from employees. Workers who are given the opportunity to contribute by their bosses. If you

You treat the important

...begins the transaction between the phone... in understanding the... always answered... or herself by nam... more than a few... a customer on hold for... the most certain way to alienate... those than... the caller... If you can't find the information you need within a minute or less, volunteer to call the customer back. And always, ALWAYS, call the customer back when you have promised to do so. Even if you haven't been able to find all the information you need, don't force the customer to wait for a call that never comes.

When you make a mistake, it's your responsibility to fix it. Operations are the backbone of your business. If you

5 Train every employee to be an important member of the Customer Satisfaction Team.

Your own understanding of the importance of customer satisfaction will be far greater if even one of your employees remains loyal in the Dark Ages. Every employee should be made aware (and be continuously reminded) that "fixing" the customer is just as important as fixing the customer's problem. The most common cause of this potentially fatal malady is employees (or here) who have allowed themselves to become isolated from the customer's concerns. It is your ultimate goal of your combined efforts is a satisfied customer who will be far more likely to return to your business than one who has been allowed to become isolated from the customer's concerns.

6 Don't make a mistake, own it.

7 Make sure that you treat the telephone as an important business tool.

Your customer experience with your store begins the exact moment that one of your employees answers the phone. Make sure that your telephone is always answered and respect the customer's time. Never allow it to ring more than three or four times. Have a customer on hold for more than a minute or two and you are likely to lose the customer. And always, ALWAYS, call the customer back when you have promised to do so. Even if you haven't been able to find all the information you need, don't leave the customer to wait for a call that never comes.

8 Don't overlook your employees as a source of ideas to improve your operation.

No one is closer to your customers and their operations than your own employees. Acknowledgment and recognition are two things that your employees need to stay motivated and committed to your business. If you are a small business, you should be able to make it a point to have your employees feel that their contributions to the business are the more likely to make a difference. If you are a large corporation, you should be able to make it a point to have your employees feel that their contributions to the business are the more likely to make a difference.
