Customer satisfaction. The most common cause of customer dissatisfaction will be the length of time your employees remain in the Dark Ages. Every employee should be made aware of your status as fixing the customer's problem. If you've been in business for a while, you've already seen your share of cases where the customer's problem was resolved, but the customer was still unhappy. The most common cause of this potentially fatal malady is employees (or owners) who have allowed themselves to become isolated from the customer's concerns. It's up to you to make certain that all of your employees understand that the ultimate goal of your combined efforts is a satisfied customer, not just a sale.

8 Don't overlook your employees as a source of ideas to improve your operation.

No one is closer to your customers and their opinions than your own employees. Acknowledgment and respect from employees. Workers who are respected by their bosses contribute to the success of the business. If you

You treat the important

When you begin the search for a customer on hold for more than a few minutes, you've already alienated the customer. Always answer the phone or your door for yourself by name. If you can't find the information you need within a minute or two, volunteer to call the customer back. And always, ALWAYS, call the customer back when you have promised to do so. Even if you haven't been able to find all the information you need, don't force the customer to wait for a call that never comes.

When you make a mistake, own it. Operations are a business. It's your business. It's your responsibility. It's your future. It's your life. It's your chance to make a difference. It's your chance to make a difference. It's your chance to make a difference.
